ANKARA UNIVERSITY FACULTY OF THEOLOGY

OPENS ITS DOORS TO INTERNATIONAL STUDENTS (A NEW PROGRAM)

MUSLIM THEOLOGY and RELIGIOUS STUDIES (ENGLISH)

ANKARA UNIVERSITY FACULTY OF THEOLOGY
MUSLIM THEOLOGY and RELIGIOUS STUDIES
(ENGLISH) AT ANKARA UNIVERSITY

Faculty of Theology at Ankara University has a distinguished place in the history of Islamic and religious thought in Turkey. The intellectual sources of the Faculty are rooted in the rich legacy of classical Islamic sciences advanced throughout a long-lasting and multi-cultured Islamic and Turkish history. Since its establishment in 1949, the Faculty has played an important role in the academic teaching of Islamic and religious scholarly disciplines by integrating the traditional spirit of Islamic disciplines with modern improvements of religious studies. It thus has been a distinctive character of the Faculty of Theology to accommodate traditional Islamic values and the advantages of critical thinking in religious matters.

Starting from the academic year of 2010-2011 Ankara University establishes a new department under its Faculty of Theology in order to open its gates to international students who seek to gain a well-grounded academic education in the fields of Islamic theology and religious studies. Ankara University aims at exemplifying an international community of dedicated students, scholars, and intellectuals in an intercultural milieu.

The courses will be conducted in English and there will be a preparatory English language class (one year) for the students who do not have the required level. At the end of the fourth academic year, the students will be qualified for BA degree. The students are expected to receive a comprehensive knowledge in the fields of Islamic theology and religious studies, as the courses range from the basic traditional Islamic disciplines such as Arabic language, Qur'anic exegesis (tafsir), Prophetic tradition (hadith), Islamic jurisprudence (fiqh), Islamic theology (kalam), Islamic philosophy (falsafa), Islamic mysticism (tasawwuf) and Islamic history to the modern disciplines such as philosophy of religion, the study of comparative religions, sociology of religion, psychology of religion and religious education.

Ankara University Faculty of Theology is an international center of educational excellence which integrates traditional and modern intellectual studies on Islam and other religions of the world. It provides this education with contextualizing Islamic studies within the general picture of social sciences and humanities and thus blends harmoniously modern academic disciplines with traditional scholarly fields. It provides a virtually unparalleled opportunity to study Islam within a living Muslim society and with professionals who are well versed in both traditional and modern techniques of academic study. It aims at bringing together the rich intellectual resources of faculty and students at Ankara University with an international scholarly network to explore issues of religion in today's complex, globalizing, and changing world.

Ankara University Faculty of Theology enhances intercultural and interreligious understanding and fosters civilizational dialogue across religious communities and nations. It develops an environment which instils commitment for life-long learning and a deep sense of social responsibility. It works towards building a deeper and broader understanding of the histories and contemporary patterns of the world's religious communities by exploring the possibilities for incorporating their insights in the context of modern religious studies. In light of the increasing prominence of religion in conflicts globally, the Ankara University's mission of promoting a broad, sympathetic understanding of the world's religions in cooperation with individuals and institutions in Turkey and internationally has assumed a special and compelling urgency.

Ankara University's students come from all over the world. The university is culturally diverse and open to all nationalities from across the globe. Undoubtedly this is one place where great leaders of the future are being trained and nurtured to actualize and show their potentials. Accordingly, the university strives to create knowledge, to open the minds of students to that knowledge, and to enable students to take best advantage of their educational opportunities.

To these ends, Ankara University Faculty of Theology encourages students to respect ideas and their free expression, and to rejoice in discovery and in critical thought; to pursue excellence in a spirit of productive cooperation; and to assume responsibility for the consequences of personal actions. The Faculty of Theology is a scholarly institution that exemplifies an international community of dedicated intellectuals, scholars, professionals.

Ankara University Admission Policy

Ankara University makes all decisions concerning applicants, students, faculty and staff on the basis of the individual's qualifications to contribute Ankara University's educational objectives and institutional needs.
